Get the Facts!

- There are many myths about disability benefits and work
 - Myth: "If I go to work, I will lose my health care coverage."

 PEATC.org

Extension of Medical Coverage

- Beneficiaries can get extended healthcare benefits after they return to work
 - Ticket legislation allows for up to 93 months of “extended Medicare coverage” after a beneficiary goes to work
 - After the 93 months, many beneficiaries can continue to receive Medicare coverage by paying a premium

Medicaid Extensions

- Many people are eligible to continue receiving Medicaid even after they stop receiving SSI benefits as a result of work
- To continue receiving Medicaid coverage, a person must
 - Still have a disability, and
 - Have earnings below the amount set by your state
- If the above does not apply, there are two different programs that provide individual states the option of providing Medicaid benefits while a beneficiary is working – Referred to as a Medicaid Buy-In

Another Myth

“If I go to work, get off disability benefits and later lose my job, I will have to reapply and wait to get back on benefits.”

Quick Reinstatement to Benefits

- If a person goes to work and later stops working due to his/her disability, there is an “Expedited Reinstatement to Benefits”
- Quick access to up to 6 months of “provisional” benefits while SSA does a review of the person’s medical history to confirm that s/he still meets SSA’s eligibility standards for disability benefits
- The beneficiary does not have to repay the “provisional” benefits received (except in cases of fraud)

Take Advantage of SSA Work Incentives?

- Work Incentives are SSA rules that help people keep their disability benefits while they explore work
- By using Work Incentives a person can make more money, gain new skills, & achieve greater independence through work

Examples of Work Incentives

- Trial Work Period (TWP) (SSDI only)
 - The TWP allows you to test your ability to work for at least 9 months.
- Extended Period of Eligibility (SSDI only)
 - For 36 months after the TWP SSA may restart your SSDI benefits without:
 - a new application,
 - disability determination,
 - or waiting period.
- Earned Income Exclusion (SSI only)
 - Less than half of earned income is counted by SSA as earnings in determining amount of benefit check.

SSA Has Other Work Incentive Programs

- Two Work Incentive programs of particular interest to youth with disabilities
- Impairment-Related Work Expenses: SSA deducts the cost of certain "impairment-related" items and services that a person needs to work
 - Deduction is taken from gross earnings to reduce the person's countable earnings when determining performance of Substantial Gainful Activity (SGA)
- Student Earned Income Exclusion (SEIE only): Generous earnings exclusions for youth under age 22 who regularly attend school
